How To Use This Directory

This directory is provided for buyers and sellers of Alaska seafood courtesy of the Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute (ASMI). This directory includes a listing of businesses that sell Alaska seafood as well as information on international trade, quality and handling, and free promotional support for retailers and foodservice operators.

BUSINESS LISTING

Each listing includes the species and product forms carried, as well as sales contact information. The listings reflect a wide range of companies, from small specialty retailers to large corporate processors, and readers are urged to contact all suppliers of a particular product to find the company that best suits their needs. Please note that this directory should not be considered as a complete listing of all Alaska seafood suppliers, nor should it be interpreted as an endorsement of any company by ASMI.

INDUSTRY INFORMATION

This directory also includes basic information on species, harvest seasons, and a map of Alaska fishing areas. For information on regulations, harvesting organizations, fisheries development, seafood quality programs and market conditions, see “Seafood Industry Organizations.”

PROMOTIONAL SUPPORT

Foodservice operators and retailers can take advantage of the free educational and promotional materials available for order.

About The Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute

The Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute (ASMI) was created in 1981 by the Alaska State Legislature. It is a public agency funded by the Alaska seafood industry, the state of Alaska and the federal government. ASMI promotes Alaska seafood throughout the U.S. and in 27 countries across the globe. ASMI also provides promotional materials, education and training to the seafood industry in food safety and quality assurance practices.

MISSION

The Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute is a marketing organization with the mission of increasing the economic value of the Alaska seafood resource through:

- Increased positive awareness of the Alaska Seafood brand
- Collaborative marketing programs that align ASMI and industry marketing efforts for maximum impact within the food industry
- Long-term proactive marketing planning
- Quality assurance, technical industry analysis, education, advocacy and research
- Prudent, efficient fiscal management
- Championing the sustainability of Alaska's seafood harvests resulting from existing Alaska fisheries management imperatives. (State of Alaska Constitution, the Halibut Act, and Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Management and Conservation Act).

ASMI Programs

ASMI's Domestic and International Marketing programs are designed to enhance the appeal and popularity of Alaska seafood. Each program designs distinctive promotional and educational materials to assist businesses. They also perform outreach at expositions and trade shows.

The Technical program works in collaboration with the marketing programs by researching and developing educational materials and programs on how to maintain seafood quality from harvest to market.

The Communications program acts as a liaison with the seafood industry, policy makers, the business community, and local, state, and federal officials. It conducts media relations activities and press interviews, oversees the Seafood Market Information Service, participates in seafood industry trade shows, prepares reports for the Governor and legislature, and advances the education effort for sustainable Alaska seafood.

INTERNATIONAL MARKETING PROGRAM

The International program works to increase both trade and consumer awareness of the Alaska Seafood brand and the Alaska seafood industry and its products in international markets. Eight Overseas Marketing Representatives manage activities in 27 countries. The invaluable expertise of these professionals provides ASMI with extensive exposure in each of our markets.

Since 1987, ASMI has been a participant in federal export assistance programs; currently, ASMI is funded by the Market Access Program (MAP), which is administered by the United States Department of Agriculture's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS). ASMI, the State of Alaska and the federal government work together to increase volume, value and/or market share through marketing efforts. ASMI's goals for the international program range from maintaining market share in our more mature markets to developing new markets for Alaska Seafood.

DOMESTIC MARKETING PROGRAM

ASMI's Domestic Marketing Program includes national public relations and consumer advertising programs as well as the retail and foodservice industries in the United States and Canadian markets.

FOODSERVICE MARKETING PROGRAM

About ASMI Foodservice

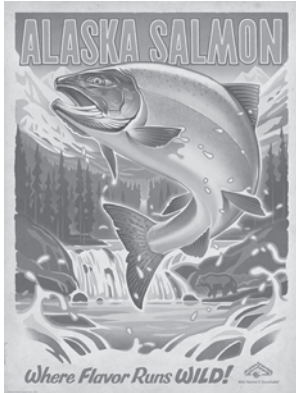

The domestic foodservice marketing program is designed to help foodservice operators, commercial and non-commercial, handle, design menus for and promote wild Alaska seafood.

ASMI works with all segments of the foodservice industry to increase awareness and broaden the demand for wild and sustainable Alaska seafood and offers expertise on the latest seafood and eating trends. Each year new foodservice recipes are developed by working with chefs to create signature dishes using Alaska seafood.

Promotional & Educational Materials

A variety of promotional, theme-based materials are available to help promote world famous Alaska seafood. Point-of-sale materials include posters, menu sheets, table tents and waitstaff buttons to create that special Alaska seafood atmosphere.

Key educational pieces include: species identification and fact sheets, training videos, storage, handling and quality information.

Many businesses have seen sales and profits rise as a result of partnering with the foodservice program at ASMI.

RETAIL MARKETING PROGRAM

The Domestic Retail Marketing program works with the Alaska seafood industry and retailers across the U.S. and Canada to support their sales and marketing efforts in order to build value and educate consumers on Wild, Natural & Sustainable Alaska Seafood.

The retail program works directly with chefs, home economists, health professionals, quality experts and key industry members to capitalize on the latest seafood development and preparation trends. This knowledge is translated into a variety of consumer point-of-sale items and retail sales aids: recipe leaflets and brochures, nutritional information, on packs, posters, channel and case signs, instructional videos, photography as well as digital ads and social media support. Materials are made available FREE to all Alaska seafood trade and industry members when developing retail promotions for Alaska seafood.

Retailers and industry members can create customized promotions and boost their sales of Alaska seafood with just a few clicks using our Digital Asset Library. Get immediate access to Alaska Seafood's logos, photos, recipes, videos and much more. Visit: www.alaskaseafoodassets.com to create an account and start downloading assets today. For additional information on how to create your own custom promotions contact the retail team at 800-806-2497.

Comprehensive training for seafood counter staff is also available through Alaska Seafood U: an interactive web-based training program covering the primary Alaska species, harvesting methods, nutrition, and sustainability. Take the course today at www.AlaskaSeafoodU.org. A flash-drive version (no internet connection required) is also available, free of charge.

Frozen Alaska Seafood

Why businesses work with frozen seafood...

When people ask, “Is the seafood fresh?” what they really mean is “Is it good quality?” It may come as a surprise, but some of the best and highest-quality seafood is often frozen.

Boasting over one million square miles of rich fishing waters, the majority of the Alaska harvest—nearly six billion pounds of seafood a year—is frozen within hours of harvest, often at sea. Seafood quality cannot be improved once a fish leaves the water; it can only be maintained. The Alaska seafood industry has found high-technology freezing to be a superior method for preserving seafood quality.

BENEFITS OF FROZEN SEAFOOD:

- Consistent availability throughout the year
- “Added value” with improved shelf life
- Ease of handling
- Convenient packaging for consumer use

Retailers can boost sales of frozen Alaska seafood with ASMI’s COOK IT FROZEN![®] techniques. ASMI developed a series of COOK IT FROZEN![®] techniques (sautéing, roasting, broiling, poaching, steaming and grilling) to support frozen Alaska seafood products and to provide convenient healthy meal options to today’s time-starved consumers. Frozen Alaska seafood portions can be prepared in as little as 15 minutes—with no thawing or pre-planning needed!

ASMI provides everything retailers need to execute a COOK IT FROZEN![®] promotion free of charge, from in-store demos and merchandising materials to training. Many retailers now look forward to promotional opportunities with ASMI throughout the year. To learn more, please contact us at 800-806-2497 or visit us online at <http://www.alaskaseafood.org/retail/>.

SEAFOOD TECHNICAL PROGRAM

About ASMI Technical Program

The technical program is involved with matters of food safety, quality, nutrition, food labeling, as well as environmental issues such as fisheries sustainability and seafood purity. The technical program works to ensure Alaska is a premium wild, natural and sustainable seafood source.

Quality Assurance

ASMI's technical program works with the industry to educate producers and customers about the proper handling of seafood: on the boat; in the processing plant; the most effective cooling and freezing techniques; storage requirements; shipping procedures; and other practices that ensure the consumer gets the very best product available.

Alaska Responsible Fisheries Management Certification Program

The Alaska Responsible Fisheries Management (RFM) Program, developed by the Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute in 2010, is an independent third-party certification system. It assures seafood buyers that Alaska RFM certified fisheries are sustainable and responsibly managed. The Alaska RFM Program is a robust, science-based and cost-effective fisheries certification platform that offers the Alaska fishing industry and its customers a Certification of Responsible Fisheries Management at the highest level of market acceptance.

The Alaska RFM Chain of Custody Program

The Chain of Custody Standard ensures that only Alaska Seafood products bearing the statement “sourced from a certified Alaska fishery” can make this claim. It gives confidence to all seafood buyers that the product can be traced back through the supply chain to the Alaska RFM certified fishery.

Seafood Safety and the Environment

To increase understanding around worldwide concerns regarding seafood health, the technical program has developed educational materials available for industry members, salespeople and consumers.

The available literature addresses environmental issues including ecological health, fisheries sustainability, and seafood purity, as well as nutritional information and seafood safety.

Educational and Training Materials

Materials available for order include pamphlets, booklets, posters, videos, CDs and on-line training tools. Resources are also available to shippers, retailers and foodservice operators on how to maintain the high quality of Alaska seafood throughout the journey from the supplier to the consumer.

BLACK COD (SABLEFISH)

Sometimes marketed as “sablefish” or “butterfish,” Alaska black cod has a rich, distinctive flavor and tender texture. To ensure top quality, special care is taken during harvesting and processing. A growing favorite with the restaurant trade, Alaska black cod is marketed year-round in a variety of forms. It is available fresh or frozen, either whole or dressed (ranging from 3-5 pounds), and in fillets and steaks. Black cod is often marketed in either cold or hard-smoked; some also sold in pickled form.

HALIBUT

North Pacific or Alaska halibut (Hippoglossus stenolepis) is the largest member of the flounder fish family. Characterized by snow-white, mild flavored, firm flesh, halibut is prized by restaurants and consumers alike. Halibut is commonly marketed fresh or frozen as steaks, roasts, fletches (fillets), or gutted whole.

PACIFIC COD

Sometimes marketed as “Pacific cod,” or “true cod,” this white-fleshed, mild-flavored fish (Gadus macrocephalus) compares favorably with its counterpart from the Atlantic. Pacific cod fillets are available year-round frozen in 15 pound shatterpacks, or in 20–25 pound packages of individually quick frozen fillets. Other forms include salted, split or filleted cod and stockfish (salt cured and wind-dried split cod).

POLLOCK, ALASKA

The fishery for Pollock in Alaska waters is highly productive. Alaska Pollock (Theragra chalcogramma) represents the single largest edible fish harvest in the world by volume. Pollock is a mildly flavored and economical white fish. It is commonly marketed frozen either as shatterpack or block fillets or headed and dressed. Pollock is also used for surimi and other products.

ROCKFISH/SNAPPER (IDIOT)

Alaska's waters support large populations of several species of rockfish (Sebastes). The most popular is yelloweye (Sebastes ruberrimus). Because of the firm texture and mild flesh—which turns white when cooked—rockfish can be prepared a number of ways. Alaska rockfish is commonly marketed as fresh or frozen whole (or gutted) fish and as fresh or frozen fillets.

SALMON

SALMON (King)

Other common names

Chinook salmon, spring salmon

Latin name

Onchorhynchus tshawytscha

Prized for their color, high oil content, firm texture and succulent flesh, king salmon are the largest and least abundant of the species. Average weight is 18 to 20 pounds but they can be greater than 40 pounds. Length ranges from 30 to 40 inches. King salmon have blue-green to black backs with black spots and silver sides. Black spots can be seen on the back and tail. They have dark colored or black gums. Salmon over 30 pounds are likely to be kings.

SALMON (Keta)

Other common names

Chum salmon

Latin name

Onchorhynchus keta

Keta salmon have a firm texture, tempting orange-pink color and delicate flavor. The average weight is eight pounds and they can grow to be 25 to 27 inches long. The identifying characteristics of a keta salmon are the absence of large black spots from body and fins and slender caudal peduncle. They are metallic to blue above and silvery below with white tips on the fins of mature fish. Maturing fish also have a series of dark bars across the sides.

SALMON (Coho)

Other common name

Silver salmon

Latin name

Oncorhynchus kisutch

With their orange-red flesh, firm texture and delicate flavor, coho have gained wide consumer acceptance. Their size and excellent color retention properties make them popular in both frozen and smoked forms. Coho salmon are the second largest of the species with the average weight being 12 pounds and ranging from 25 to 35 inches in length. Coho are metallic blue on the dorsal surface and silvery below. They have black spots on their back and white colored gums.

SALMON (Sockeye)

Other common names

Red salmon

Latin name

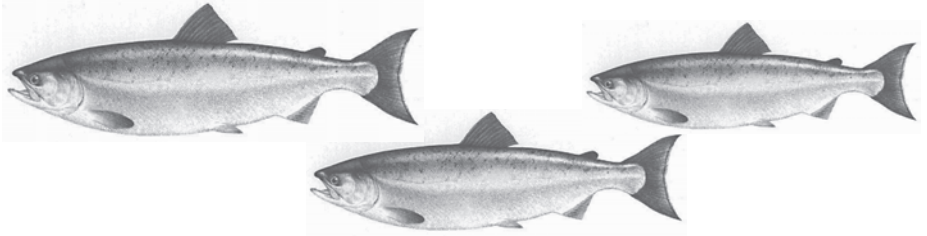

Onchorhynchus nerka

The second most abundant salmon species is sockeye. The distinct, deep red flesh retains its color throughout cooking, and brings dramatic impact to any presentation. They are known for their rich flavor. The average weight is approximately six pounds and they can grow to almost three feet in length. Sockeye salmon are bluish green with fine black speckling on the dorsal side and silvery below with no large spots on their back.

SHELLFISH VARIETIES

ABALONE

This firm-fleshed, mild-tasting mollusc (Haliotis kamtschatkana), is harvested by divers, primarily in Southeast Alaska waters. It is available seasonally in fresh form, and is also available frozen whole-in-shell, or vacuum-packed (meat only). Contact individual companies for information.

CLAM (Geoduck, Horse, Littleneck, Razor Steamer)

Alaska's clam resources are largely undeveloped, although the fishery for hard- and soft-shell clams is growing. Two certified beaches now support fisheries for the Pacific razor clam (Siliqua platula) and several species of hard-shell clams. Contact individual companies for information.

CRAB (KING, DUNGENESS, SNOW, HAIR)

Dungeness Crab (Cancer magister); Hair Crab (Erimacrus isenbeckii); King Crab (Paralithodes camtschatica); Snow Crab—Tanner Crab (Chionoecetes opilio/Chionoecetes bairdi).

King crab is the largest species caught in the Alaska waters and the major production come from the Bering Sea and the Aleutians. Dungeness crab are smaller than kings, and their legs are shorter than snow crab. The meat is flaky and almost sweet. Snow crab average 2–4 pounds and have a sweet, subtle flavor. Hair crab is caught off the Pribilofs and Dutch Harbor area and is shipped live to Japan. Crab reaches the market as cooked legs and claws, split cooked legs and claws, broiler and cocktail claws, portioned packages, frozen blocks, or live.

SHRIMP (COONSTRIPE, PINK, SIDESTRIPE, SPOT)

The Alaska shrimp harvest is comprised of four different species, coonstripe (Pandalus hypinotus), pink (Pandalus borealis), sidestripe (Pandalus dispar), and spot (Pandalus platyceros). The small pink shrimp make up the majority of Alaska's shrimp production and are ideal for appetizers or main courses. Alaska prawns are commonly frozen raw in-shell, either in blocks or IQF in bags or pouches.

Seafood Industry Organizations

This section contains a listing of some of the international, national, regional, state, and other organizations that are involved in various aspects of the seafood industry.

Many agencies, associations and interest groups offer specific information on the seafood industry. This includes information on regulations, fisheries development, seafood quality programs and market conditions.

Marketing assistance is available through a variety of agencies including the Alaska Department of Commerce, Community & Economic Development (DCCED), the Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute, and regional fisheries development associations, the National Marine Fisheries Service, and Alaska SeaGrant among others.

STATE OF ALASKA

Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute (Agency of Department of Commerce, Community, and Economic Development)

www.alaskaseafood.org

The Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute (ASMI) was created in 1981 by the Alaska State Legislature. It is a public agency funded by the Alaska seafood industry, the State of Alaska, and the federal government. Retailers, foodservice operators, fishermen, processors and consumers can contact ASMI to order promotional, educational, nutritional, and quality control materials.

REGIONAL SEAFOOD DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION

Regional seafood development associations (RSDAs) are a new type of non-profit organization in Alaska. Created by the Legislature and signed into law after the 2nd session of the 23rd Legislature (2003-2004), these entities, comprising commercial fisheries permit holders in 12 regions of the state, address a number of economic seafood development initiatives intended to raise product quality and brand their regional commercial seafood harvests.

To date, RSDAs have formed in Prince William Sound, Bristol Bay, Southeast Alaska, and the Aleutians Islands/Alaska Peninsula. To learn more about their activities, visit them at these sites:

STATE OF ALASKA

Department of Commerce, Community & Economic Development

www.commerce.state.ak.us

The State of Alaska's Department of Commerce, Community, & Economic Development's mission is to support healthy economies and strong communities. It has several divisions in place to assist Alaskans in the fishing business.

Division of Economic Development

www.commerce.stat.ak.us/ded/home.htm

The Division of Economic Development was created on October 12, 2010, by Governor Sean Parnell's Administrative Order 257. The division is a one-stop shop that can assist an existing or proposed business with financing, marketing, business assistance, and governmental coordination. Services offered include specialized assistance in the tourism, film, small business, fisheries and minerals development sectors, as well as the administration of 12 state loan programs, including Commercial Fishing, Fisheries Enhancement, Small Business Economic Development (SBED), Rural Development Initiative Fund, and Capstone Avionics.

The division combines the former Office of Economic Development and the Division of Investments to increase the effectiveness of organizations with similar missions. The division will operate from state offices in Anchorage, Fairbanks and Juneau.
