Chairman’s Remarks
Vice-Chair James Riley spoke to current challenges over the last year regarding snow crab and bairdi. He sees more opportunity in the marketing efforts of golden king crab. Riley welcomed Jeff Otness to the committee.

Reading of the Anti-Trust Statement
Riley read ASMI’s anti-trust statement.

Public Comment
Jeremy Woodrow spoke to difficulties recruiting additional members for the shellfish committee and requested help from the committee with recruitment. Kozak asked Woodrow if ASMI would be starting a new committee for kelp or if the committee should be recruiting those industry members. Woodrow mentioned that legislation is in the works to determine if ASMI could market kelp, and ASMI could not take action at this time.

New Business

a. Messaging on sustainability of Alaskan Crab. Seafood watch ratings and marketing impact if Opilio is declared overfished

Riley asked for a one-page pamphlet on opilio crab. George reported that she would ask John Burrows and get back to the committee.

Minor and Kozak asked for messaging from the State of Alaska that the management of crab stocks harvest limits will fluctuate. The management is in place to protect the species. When harvest rates go down, it means the managers are doing their job. The committee requested ASMI create a one-pager to communicate crab fisheries management and the current closures to stakeholders.

Stone reiterated that shellfish quotas had been cut is sustainability in action. Need help from ASMI to work with seafood watch to ensure they are not on the watch list.

Riley asked for talking points on sustainability and an update from ASMI on their ongoing efforts regarding the seafood watch list.

Kozak asked ASMI to engage with ADF&G instead of the industry attempting to make these corrections.

Woodrow posted in the chat that he believes ADFG is engaged in the MBAq assessment for crab. He then echoed the industry’s frustrations on how MBAq portrays Alaska seafood.

John Burrows mentioned that ADF&G is pushing for more info, but the information is not out yet.

Burrows posted in the chat that ASMI Technical worked on talking points for opilio. ADF&G has given a lot of feedback to the assessment.
b. Further test/cost recovery fisheries to support research for Bering Sea Crab

Riley posed the question: How can we work as an industry to facilitate more research in the Bering sea crab? Riley asked if there was a gap in funding for additional research and if so, he asked how ASMI could fill that gap. Paulson responded that they are funded by harvesters and processors in the industry.

Kozak encouraged the board to get involved in more research, focusing on groundfish and crab stocks. Kozak requested cooperative research with similarly focused organizations and for ASMI to promote this research for the industry.

c. Expansion of technical support for whole cooked Dungeness and ADEC programs

Riley asked if ASMI is aware of the ADEC program and could provide technical support. Burrows mentioned the technical committee would discuss it at their next meeting, and Riley agreed to wait for an update.

d. Expand marketing of Dungeness as an alternative to snow crab for both Domestic/International markets.

Riley asked if there was a video or more marketing effort for golden king crab and Dungeness.

Ashley Heimbigner provided a link to a new species bio video from Channel Films on crab. She mentioned there is some confusion about different crab species in the markets, so they decided to create a generic consumer-facing video. Riley asked for a specific golden king crab video and Dungeness.

Riley asked for more marketing on golden king crab as an alternative to red king crab.

Stone wanted to ensure ASMI promotes all Alaska crab to provide alternatives interchangeably when needed in the market.

Kozak wanted to know if this marketing effort would be domestic or international. She hoped that the marketing work would focus on domestic.

e. Addition of members representing Alaskan mariculture/aquaculture

Riley mentioned that Woodrow already touched on how mariculture and aquaculture are tied-up in the legislature.

f. ASMI Staff Marketing Updates

Abi Spofford, Asia Marketing Coordinator, and Monica George, Domestic Marketing Coordinator, provided brief crab market updates in their respective regions.
